ACADEMICAL DEPARTMENT.

This department of the Institution is open for the reception of any student of good moral character, and of a suitable age to be removed from the restraints of domestic life. It furnishes peculiar facilities for an extended and thorough English education. Grammar, Geography, Arithmetic and other common English branches, are taught with great thoroughness; and when perfected in these, any student may pursue, in connection with classes in the Collegiate Department, all the higher Mathematical studies, Rhetoric, Intellectual and Moral Philosophy, Evidences of Christianity, Logic, Political Economy, &c.; thus enjoying all the advantages of a liberal education, excepting only an acquaintance with the learned languages; and, although no diploma is given, yet, at the close of an extended course of English studies, the student is entitled to a certificate of his attainments, scholarship and deportment, signed by the President of the College and the Secretary of the Board of Trustees.

Those who intend to devote a part or all their time to teaching, or to engage in mercantile pursuits, or in any department of business, will find at this Institution all needed assistance in securing the necessary literary qualifications.

In this department are also taught the elements of the Latin and Greek languages, as preparatory to admission, in full, into the Collegiate Department. Peculiar attention is paid to the Pronunciation, Etymology, and the Syntax of these languages. The object is not to hurry pupils from one author to another, but to make them perfectly familiar, before entering College, with all the elementary principles, and thus at an early period in their literary course, forming a taste, a relish, for these languages.

The Text Books used in this department are Davies' Arithmetic, Mitchell's Geography, Green's English Grammar, Sophocles' Greek Lessons and Greek Grammar, Andrews' and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, Andrews' Latin Reader, Cæsar's Commentaries, Cicero's Select Orations, Virgil, Felton's Greek Reader, and Davies' First Lessons in Algebra.

EXPENSES.

|                             |                 |
|-----------------------------|-----------------|
| Tuition, per quarter-----   | $5 25          |
| Room rent, per quarter----- | 1 50            |
| Contingent fund-----        | 25              |
| Board per week-----         | $1 25 and 1 50 |
| Washing, per week-----      | 25              |

 Tuition, Room-rent and Contingent Fund always demanded in advance.

Students will find it for their interest as well as comfort to bring with them what furniture they may need in their rooms, such as sheets, towels, bed spreads, &c., as they sometimes find it inconvenient and expensive to furnish themselves with these articles after their arrival. Bedsteads, chairs and tables may usually be obtained about College.

COLLEGE BUILDINGS.

There are two edifices, the upper and the lower. The upper was erected in 1836, and contains twenty-four rooms. Two of these are occupied by the Literary Societies, with their Libraries; two for recitation rooms, one by the President for a study, and the remainder by the students. The rooms in this building are in good repair, convenient and healthy.

The lower edifice was erected in 1832, and besides the apartments of the President and Steward, contains thirty rooms. Two of these are occupied as recitation rooms, two by the Tutors as studies, two for public Libraries, and the remainder by students. These rooms are small, (10 by 12) inconvenient, having no closets) and, from long and hard usage, in a very shattered condition. In consequence of this, and of increasing patronage, and need of more ample accommodations, the Trustees have decided to make an appeal to the friends of the College for funds, with which to put up a new building. The spot which they have selected as its site, is about one hundred and twenty feet west of the edifice now standing in the upper enclosure.

The plan of the proposed building is yet in the hands of the architect. But it is their intention to build it of substantial materials, and to unite, as far as it is possible, internal convenience with external elegance. The interests of the College require that it should be ready for occupancy on the first of Sept. 1852.

At a recent meeting it was "voted that any person contributing three thousand dollars towards the erection of the proposed building, should be entitled to the privilege of naming it."

It is hoped that some one will, by a liberal contribution, aid in planting this "tree of centuries," and cause generations yet unborn to rise up and call him blessed.

DISCIPLINE.

The officers have their rooms in the College edifices, and visit the rooms of students twice or oftener each day; and, during hours appropriated to study, maintain quietness and good order in the halls and over the premises. They also keep a Register, showing the absence of each student from all exercises upon which his attendance is required: also, the degree of excellence or deficiency of each performance, and his general deportment. This, if requested, is, at the close of the term, transmitted to parents or guardians, and is open at all times to their inspection. They may thus be as well informed of the proficiency and conduct of their sons or wards, as if they were pursuing their studies under their own immediate supervision.

The laws enacted by the Trustees for regulating the internal affairs of the Institution, will, at all times, be enforced by the Faculty with firmness and impartiality. When kindness and an appeal to honorable principles or private admonition will secure the end aimed at in these regulations, they will always be preferred and employed. But when these fail to influence any young man faithfully to improve his time and opportunities, his friends will be informed of his delinquencies, that he may be removed from the Institution, if possible, without public censure.
